

algar

Small Size  CLASSICS

HEIDI

JOHANNA SPYRI

Adapted by Teresa Brozeta • Drawings by Jesús Aguado

Heidi had been living with Aunt Dete since her parents died. When she was five years old, Dete found a job as a maid in Frankfurt and she told her:

“I won’t be able to take care of you anymore, Heidi. You are going to live with your grandfather.”

Heidi didn’t know her grandfather, but she didn’t say a word. With Aunt Dete, there was never any point in complaining!

It was a long trip, because grandad lived in a cabin deep in the Swiss Alps. In the nearby town, where he was called “the Old Man of the Alps”, he was known for being unfriendly and avoiding any human company.

Heidi was immediately thrilled with that impressive landscape. On the way up to her grandfather's cabin they met Peter, a boy who was herding some goats.

"This is all so beautiful!" said Heidi, playing with the goats. "I'm glad to come live with my grandad."

Peter was speechless. He couldn't believe that the Old Man of the Alps, so severe and serious, had such a fun granddaughter. And even less that he would like to live with her!

