PETER PAN

JAMES MATTHEW BARRIE

Adapted by Vicente Muñoz Puelles • Drawings by Jesús Aguado

All the children in the world, except one, grow up. And not only do they grow up, they immediately know that they will grow up. All of them, except Peter Pan.

In a house in London lived the Darlings, a family with three children, Wendy, John and Michael, and a dog, Nana.

One night, Peter Pan snuck in through the window. He was listening to the stories that Wendy was telling her brothers about the child who never grows up when Nana found him and started to bark. Peter flew away in such a hurry that he left his shadow behind and Nana trapped it.

The parents had left. Peter came back for his shadow that had slipped away. Wendy helped him trap it.

While she sewed the shadow to his shoes, Peter thought that Wendy could tell stories to the Lost Boys who lived in Neverland.

“Come with me to a place where no one grows up,” he said to her.

Wendy was fascinated. Peter was exactly like in her stories.

They woke up John and Michael. Peter taught them to fly and the four of them left through the window.
