

The Chest Full of MONSTERS

algar

THE SKELETON

Enric Lluch & Mercè López

Mum, Dad, Grandma and Grandpa were very happy skeletons, because a new baby skeleton had been born. “We’ll call him Boney,” they announced, brimming with pride.

In a week, Boney had grown several inches and knew how to say 'Mum', 'Dad', 'Pee' and 'Poo'.

So his mum decided it was time to take him to school.

At school, Boney practised sitting down without falling apart; he began reading and he learned the names of all the bones.

He also learned to run without losing any bones on the way.