In the whole Grey City there was nobody vainer than Mr. Jolly, a grey man who had always wanted to be original.

He loved walking up and down in the grey streets of his city and giving himself airs in front of grey women.

One day, he was already bored of such grey stuff and he decided to buy a striped sweater he saw in a shop. –I will go to the park with my sweater and all the women going for a walk will see how handsome I am.
